Disaffection Pervades Russian Line In Disorderly Retreat Service Bill Passes Through House

Before Enemy Armies; Tarnopol Imperilled

Hardly Anywhere Is Attempt Being Made To Hold Back Oncoming Huns—Losses In Men, Guns And Stores Extremely Heavy—On West Front French Recover Lost Ground And Push Forward—Unparallelled Artillery Battle In Progress In Northern Belgium—Prelude May Be To British Advance.

LONDON, July 24.—Despite the threat of Premier Kerensky that a policy of "Blood and Iron" is to be applied without restraint against the seditious Russian troops in east Galicia, whose disaffection has made null almost all the brilliant gains they had achieved under his personal leadership early in the month, the Russians continue their retirement virtually pell-mell, before the German and Austro-Hungarian armies. From the wooded Carpathians to the region of the Tarnopol the forces of General Korniloff almost everywhere are in disorderly retreat, hardly anywhere making an attempt to hold back the oncoming enemy. Already the losses of the Russians in men killed, wounded or made prisoner and in guns and stores captured are extremely heavy and these undoubtedly will become greater unless the hoped for stiffening in the morale of the come greater unices.
Russians is realized soon.
Tarnopol Menaced.

Stanislau, the principal junction for commercial activities in the crown land of Galicia and an important grain and manufacturing centre is being evacuated by the Russians, while Podhaytz, Halicz and other towns have been taken by the Teutons. Tarnopol, one of the chief towns in the crown land, is more seriously menaced than ever, if it has not already been taken by the enemy crossing the river to the south.

Including the hostilities in Galicia, the entire eastern front from he Baltic virtually to the Black Sea is the scene of big operations, but with the Russians standing firmly against the enemy only in the Battle virtually to the Battle State she should be but with the Russians standing firmly against the enemy only in the Roumanian theatre.

Regiments Cut To Pieces.

As in Galicia, the Russians to the north, around the region of Dvinsk and Vilna, continue to show signs of disaffection. Although they had attacked and captured German positions along the Dvinsk-Vilna railway, the Russians could not be induced to press their advantage and retired unhindered by the Germans to their old positions. In the repuise of attacks with large forces near Krevo, which was re-captured, and south of Smorgon the Germans cut entire regiments to pieces with the galling fire of infantry and machine guns.

The Germans having ceased their violent infantry attacks against the French troops along the Chemin-des-Dames in France, General Petain's forces have resumed the initiative and have taken back from the enemy small advantages gained in terrain during his weeks of tenacious assaults. The lost ground on the Californie Plateau and the Casamates Plateau his all been re-captured and the French, despite victous counter attacks by ried regiments of the German Crown Prince, have even pushed their line forward at several points in the latter region.

The artiliery battle in northern Belgium, which has been in progress for some time, has reached an intensity Uncqualied.

The artiliery battle in northern Belgium, which has been in progress for some time, has reached an intensity prever before experienced. While the British official communication has as yet only barely mentioned the fact that the big guns are hammering away, the probability is that General Haig is preparing for another of his great drives, similar to those made on the Arras and Lens fronts, which worked great havoc on the Germans and their positions and gave the British forces bases of important strategic value from whence to continue their operations.

PETROGRAD, July 24.—Stanislau is being evacuated by the Russians according to tonight's official statement. The Germans have crossed the Sereth river in the region of Mikuliee (south of Tarnapol) defeating Russian detachments. South of the Dniester, the Russians are retiring eastward.

After the Russians had occupied in Germans on both side of Dvinsk-Vilna railroad, the statement says, entire units returned to their original trenches without German pressure. A number of units refused to obey commands during battle.

unless the situation is handled

Foreign Secretary Balfour and General Sir William Robertson, chief of

YORKTON, Sask., July 24.—Four of the five Doukhobors who were arrested some time ago charged with setting fire to Peter Veregin's house at Veregin, and with committing indignities to a human body, came up for speedy trial before Judge Gordon at the district court here today and were let off on suspendid sentence.
The judge took a lenient view of their case in consideration of the fact that they have already spent six months awaiting trial on this charge.
Their compatriots gave the court an assurance that they would be put to work and kept under surveillance to prevent repetition of similar outbreaks in future.
The prisoners admitted setting fire to Peter Veregin's house valued at eight thousand dollars and the evidence showed that the villagers, incensed at the outrage, handled them pretty roughly at the time.
As a reprisal, when one of their number died some months later they brought his niked body to the house of M. Cazakoff, the official representative of Peter Veregin, and laid it on his doorstep.

DUBLIN, July 24.—Not very sanguine hopes for success for the Irish convention, about to assemble here, are expressed by the many delegates who already have arrived. There was a plenteous expression of good will toward the undertaking, however. Henry E. Duke, the chief secretary for Ireland, will open the convention tomorrow. There is a strong sentiment, chiefly among the Nationallist, to keep him permanently in the chair. Sir Francis Horwood is doing the secretarial work at present, but it is expected he will be replaced by an Irishman.

The Uleter Unionists plan to form an organized group with the chairman and secretary, probably the Marquis of Londonderry, and to consult the various existing Ulster Unionist organizations during the proceedings. (By Morning Bulletin Leased Wire)

OTTAWA, July 24.-There was less fireworks in connection with the third reading of the Military Service Bill in the commons than had been expected. Anticipated amendments did not materialize and after a debate of less than three hours the third reading was adopted on a vote of 102 to 44, a government majority of 58 in favor of the measure.

The attendance at the house when the vote was taken was not as large as when the second reading was carried a couple of weeks ago by a government majority of 63. There were no changed votes, the members of both parties lining up for and against the measure pretty much as they did on the occasion of the second reading.

Liberals Voted For.

Liberals who supported the third reading were Messrs. Graham, Pardee, Guthrie, Carvell, A. K. McLean, Turriff, Charlton, Knowles, Nesbitt, McCoig, McCraney, Levi Thomson, Champagne, Buchanan, Ross, MacMillan, Neely, Cruise, Douglas, White (Victoria), MacNutt, and Dr. Michael Clark, twenty-two in all, which was four fewer than Set Speeches.

Set speeches on the third reading were confined to Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Hon. Arthur Meighen and J. G. Turriff, while Fred Pardee, chief Liberal whip, and Hugh Guthrie, briefly explained that the reports in the press of what transpired at the Liberal conference in Toronto on Friday last, were not in accordance with their idea of what had happened at that gathering.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke at length, making a final appeal against the bill on the score that its enforcement would cause irritation and lack of unity. The Liberal leader again dealt with all phases of the question, more particularly defending his proposal to refer the matter to the people by way of a referendum. He said that this was the only proper course and that in the event of conscription being defeated it would be the duty of the Canadian people to make a fresh effort on a new basis to give all the support they could to the cause of the war.

The opposition leader claimed that conscription as introduced by the government means coercion.

The opposition leader claimed that conscription as introduced by the government means coercion.

Hon. Arthur Meighen said that the government of the day could not adopt any other policy in the face of the figures from the front. In the last two months there had been seven casualties for one recruit. He denied that the law means coercion. It was only coercion in the sense that every law in the land is coercion. Sir Wilfrid's own government put conscription on the statute books in a more drastic form than did this bill. In closing, Mr. Meighen declared that Canada could not afford to pay the price of national dishonor for harmony.

Win the War

Mr. Turriff said he did not like to differ with his fellow Liberal members, and he would remain as strong a Liberal as ever, but he believed that the only thing to do now is to put forth every effort to win the war.

Mr. Turriff favored a national government to enforce conscription. He had not much sympathy with the present Government and did not believe that the present administration or a Liberal administration could properly carry on the war.

There should be a coalition. After such a government had completed its work he would be ready to take off his coat and fight the battles of the Liberals again.

Mr. Turriff, in closing, said he was supporting the, third reading of the bill on the understanding that wealth would be taxed and that an income tax would be introduced in this Act. He proposed to be logal to the men at the front, that their sacrifices may not be made in vain.

Stands Where He Did

Fred Pardee, referring to the report of the Liberal meeting on Friday last in Toronto, said that he stands today where he stood on the second reading of the bill. He did not agree with the report as to the conclusions arrived at, as reported in the Toronto Globe. Mr. Pardee said that he remained a conscriptionist Liberal and had so stated his position at the Liberal gathering.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier

During the present session, said Sir Wilfrid Laurier, there had been recriminations, and differences between Sir Sam Hughes, the prime minister and Sir Thomas White as to what had taken place in regard to recruiting. Sir Sam Hughes had declared that recruiting had come to be as it was because his work had been interfered with by the prime minister and Sir Thomas White. It might be true that the ex-minister of militia was never actually stopped in his recruiting but he was told how not to recruit. The strongest indictment against the bill, said Sir Wilfrid, was made by Mr. Guthrie, who declared that it could not be carried out unless it were by the joint effort of a union government, which meant that the sentiment against the bill was so strong that it required the efforts of the two political parties to put in into operation.

Mr. Turriff said he did not like to differ with his fellow Liberal members, and he would remain as strong a Liberal as ever, but he believed that the only thing to do now is to forth every effort to win the war.

The Piedge That Failed. Mr. Oliver: Might I ask the reason by the provision of subsection 4 con-ins the words: "The reinforcements ovided under this Act shall not ex-ed 100,000 men."

Mr. Meighen: It is so that Pa-ila-ment will be apprised of the entire acope and destiny of the Act. It was thought well that Parliament should understand from the beginning just what was the limit—that might be reached under the Act it was asked to pass.

Mr. Oliver: Is it to be understood that when these 100,000 men are raised Canada's military obligations in connection with the war have ceased? Mr. Meighen: Oh, no. ao not think there is any ground for that understanding. Canada will still be in the war, and very much in the war—in fact more in the war than ever, when the 100,00 men are raised, It will be for Parliament thereafter to decide whether or not the Act should be amended.

amended.
Mr. Oliver: I asked the question is regard to the further effect of this subsection in connection with our obligation under the Act, and the reason ligation under the Act, and the reason for fixing the number at 100,000 men because I recall my hon. friend from North Grey (Mr. Middlerot), speakins on the second reading of the bill, very emphatically announced that this bill was for the purpose of raising 100,000 men, and when the 100,000 men were raised the bill was dead.

Mr. Middlebro: I said, without further legislation.

Mr. Middlebro: I said, without further legislation.
Mr. Oliver: Exactly. The bill was dead. Further legislation would be necessary in order to do anything more in connection with Canada's part in the war. I just wanted to sak further what relationship this bill in its terms under this subsection bears to the pledge given by the Frime Minister on behalf of Canada as to the part Canada would take in the war. 1916 by which the authorized Canadian forces were increased to 500,000 men.

Mr. Oliver: That was my allusion. I am somewhat surprised at the Prime Minister speaking of a "supposed" pledge, or raising any question as to there being a pledge when, if I recall correctly his remarks on introducing the bill, he himself spoke of that announcement, or authorization, as a pledge on behalf of Canada.

Sir Robert Borden: My hon, friend is not quite accurate. I said that it was not in form made as a pledge, but as the authorization, in the form in which it was given, had been regarded or treated as a pledge in some quarters, in so far as I was concerned, I was content so to regard it.

Mr. Oliver: Hear, hear. That bears out exactly what I said, that the Prime Minister did, in his address to the House on the introduction of the Bill, allude to his authorization of January I, 1916, as a pledge.

Sir Robert Borden: I alluded to it, but in the way I have stated.

Mr. Oliver: Yes, in that way as a pledge, and as a pledge on behalf of Canada. I desire to draw attention to the fact that not-withstanding that pledge, in which I am bound to say the honor of Canada is involved, this bill specifically does not provide for its being fulfilled according to my calculation. We have had statements made that we have had enlisted and if we add 100 000 converter. not provide for its being fulfilled actording to my calculation. We have had enlistenents made that we have had enlistenents in Canada for overseas services and if we add 10,000 conscripts to that, we will have over 800,000. But I want to draw the attention of the House to the fact that when we claim credit for having enlisted 418, 600 men, we are claiming credit under false pretenses. When the men did not provinces and are not continued in ourselves with having fulfilled our promise to that extent. The other day the hon. Minister of Militia (Sir Edward Kemp), for the first time since this matter has been under consideration, favored the House with a statement as to how many men had actually a men and the services and were not going overseas. No Hurry About Getting Men.

Mr. Oliver: About Getting Men.

Mr. Oliver: Awy I ask the hon, Solicitor General how long it is expected it will take under the operations of this bill to raise 100,000 men?

Mr. Meighen: It is hoped that we will do it before next session is very ar advanced.

Mr. Oliver: About what month of the year is that likely to be?

Mr. Meighen: I have not given very specific consideration to fhe point yet. I am more anxious to secure the passage of the bill and get it immediately into operation. The longer we delay here, of course, the longer we we will be in getting the men.

Mr. Oliver: There is no doubt about that and if my hon, friend will permit I will quote him a little story that I read one day of an Irishman who missed a train. They said: "Pat, you lid not run fast enough." He said, "Bedad, I did, but I did not start soon enough." If my hon, friend is anxious about the passage of this bill, I can only say that If he had started sooner he would have been through sooner.

No Registration of Man Power.

May I ask if the Government had taken into consideration the number of classes that are likely to be called out under this bill and what classes they are likely to be?

Mr. Melghen: It is utterly impossible to determine how many classes will be required. We will call out whatever are necessary. We will know that as soon as we get the act into operation, and of course the sooner it is in operation the sooner we will know it.

Mr. Oliver: Did the minister say that only the first class would be called?

Mr. Meighen: Oh, no; all will be called that are necessary to get the 100,000. We do not know how many will be called, and we cannot tell until the act is in operation. We will be able to form a fairly accurate idea as soon as the results of the first call are known.

the act is in operation. We will be able to form a fairly accurate idea as soon as the results of the first call are known.

Mr. Oliver: Since the minister has raised the question of delay in the passing of this bill and getting it into operation, may I suggest that if he had included in the provisions of the bill or in a preliminary bill a provision for registration, he would have saved a great deal of time in getting the full effect of the measure, because, if I understand him aright, he intends to make a call, say for class number one, and if that class does not yield enough men he will call No. 2, and so on. We have no assurance how many classes will have to be called before the required number of men are secured. I submit that even yet it would be the part of wisdom, if that is the method in which the Government intends to proceed, to incorporate a provision in the hill for a resistration of bill has any knowledge on this question which he will impart to the House.

Mr. Meighen: No, I have not. From the statement of the words of the minister in question given by the hon. member for Edmonton, it would appear very clear that the minister did not pretend to have any knowledge either. It would appear that the minister was using a specific result that might be possible, in order to indicate what the burden of the bill would be. He did not say that he had any reason to know what the result would be. He had to take some result apparently, to give a specific argument, and according to my hon; friend he simply used the word "might" in presume the word "might" might be used us to anything.

Mr. Oliver: The minister will pardon me for being somewhat printed in this matter—

Mr. Melghen: I did not observe that myself.

parts of the Deminion. We do want to know on what terms and principles this bill is to be administered and what consideration is to be given to the sacrifices already made. For that reason we insist that if it was intended by the Government that the bill should be fairly administered with regard to the conditions of the country, with regard to the need for men in the fighting line, and with regard to the services already rendered, provision would have been made in the bill requiring a certain number of men for the firing line out of a certain proportion of population; and when the bill does not contain that provision—and the hon, minister says the Government will not insert such a provision—I am compelled to come to the conclusion that the reason for that most extraordinary action in this case is because it is, not intended that the Bill shall be administered fairly as between section and section of this country.

Mr. Meighen: I suggest in that connection that the hon, member might move as an amendment a division among the provinces in such a way as he sees fit, in order that we may have something specific for the consideration of Parliament.

Mr. Oliver: I have said and repeated and repeated—

Mr. Meighen: You have not moved though.

Mr. Oliver: I have said and repeated and repeated—
Mr. Meighen: You have not moved though.
Mr. Oliver: No, it is not my business to move. It is my business to suggest, and I have the promise of the Prime Minister that any guggestions I make will be considered. I have made specific propositions and will be glad to have an answer. I made propositions five minutes ago. I said: take the population of the Dominion of military age, deduct the men who have gone into the fighting line, and apportion the requirements according to that population.

Mr. Meighen: Province by province Mr. Oliver: Yes, province by province, most undoubtedly. If the Government is not able, or does not dare to do that, then the Government is proposing to do exactly what I have accused them of doing, namely, undertaking to place an undue share of the burden of this war on those parts of the country which have, in the past, been most willing to bear it. The only reason for a Conscription Bill is that the unwilling shall be made to bear their share of the burden. Those who have been willing in the greater share of the burden in the future; we have no need of a Conscription Bill for them It can be done by voluntary enlistment. I say the minister has admitted that the Gövernment does not intend to give the people of this country a square deal under this bill.

There is no specific provision in the bill that will require the section of the country that has not done its share it the war up to the people of this country a square deal under this bill.

There is no specific provision in the bill that will require the section of the country that has not done its share if the war up to the present time, to dits share now. I am in the judgment of this House at all events—that I have certainly made suggestions to the Government as to the amendment to the bill desired on thu point. I have repeated it to such a extent that my hon, friead says he will not answer any further suggestions ir regard to it. Therefore, I am bound to conclude that it is not the Gover ment's policy to make this bill one of conscription of equal service.

Ontario's Record.

Mr. Edwards: Before the hon, gentleman leaves that point, will he terms what section or sections of the Dominion have not done their share, in the hon, gentleman's opinion?

Mr. Oliver: One of these sections, I might say, is the province of Ontario. Sir Sam Hughes: In justice to a great many men who have net gone to the front, and who are dot slackers, I might take the liberty of suggesting that all who have not gone to the front should not be classed as slackers. I should like to see a battalior raised under this measure which would be able to march to the front and feel that it could not be said the sands of these men have not gone to the front for want of some such action as this, to give them an opportunity to go.

Mr. Oliver: I do not wish to be un as this, to give them an opportunity to go.

Mr. Oliver: I do not wish to be un derstood as finding any fault with the people who have not gone. I am only insisting that, when we undertake to make men go, we shall do so on fair principles. My hon .friend (Mr. Edwards) asked me a question in regard to people who had not done their duty. I have not all the figures available, but I have some figures which will, perhaps, interest him. I find according to a statement placed before the House by the Government, that in the population of Ontario between the ages of 20 and 45, there are 371,291 Canadian-born. There is a population of British-born in the same province of 101,171 between the ages of 20 and 45. I understand that Ontario is said to have enlisted 168,000 men. I do not know how many of that 168,000

Some hon. Member: Oh, no.
Mr. Oliver: I think the casualt; list will show that beyond any argument.

ment. Mr. Oliver: This is not a question Mr. Oliver: This is not a question of reflections upon anybody. This is a question of how we are going to apply this Conscription Bill; whether it shall be fair or not fair. As I have figured it, there are sections of the country where there has not been that response in the matter of enlistment that there has been in other sections

A Double Purpose Bill.

A Double Purpose Bill.

The Prima Minister, the Solicitor-General—all those who have spoken on the bill—know that the bill is not a bill to find men for the firing line on the one hand, and for the industrial enterprises of friends of the government on the other.

Mr. Currie: The hon, gentleman is talking politics.

Mr. Oliver: That is what my hon friend himself said the other night. Some hon, Members: Oh oh.

Mr. Oliver: That is what its provisions contain, and that is why I am insistent upon knowing how this burden of military service is to be distributed.

Mr. Middlebro: Will my hon, friend point to a single provision in the bill which compels a man to work in a munition factory against his will?

Mr. Oliver: No, but I can point to two provisions in the bill which compels a man to work in a munition factory against his will?

Mr. Oliver: No, but I can point to two provisions in the bill which compels a man to work in a munition factory against his will?

Mr. Oliver: No, but I can point to two provisions in the bill which are put there especially for the purpose of providing for the exemption of men who are working in such industries, or are willing to do so. There is, therefore, no such condition as the member for North Simcoe (Mr. Currie) has suggested: that if there are so many men in one town and so many in another, all of the same class, they must all go. That is not what the Bill provides.

Mr. Currie: All who are included in the class called out are liable to service; of course, the exemptions come afterwards.

Mr. Oliver, Precisely.

This is a very important matter. It is the most important piece of legislation, I suppose, that has come before the Parliament of Canada since Confederation, and it is desirable that we should understant thoroughly what its results are going to be. We are not quibbling about the percentage of a given class; what we want to know is whether the results will be fair and equitable. Unless the results are fair and equitable, the bill will become an instrument of tyranny and oppression. But a manifestation of the spirit of democracy or of a desire to win the war. If the bill simply contained provisions intended to provide men for the firing line, certain restrictions would not be needed. But in view of the fact that subsections (a) and (b) of section 11 have been deliberately placed there for the specific purpose of exempting men from the number of exempting men from the bill, of equality and opposes. He yound any argument, it is a double-purpose bill. That being the case, those of us who are subject to its provisions in respact of one of its purposes are insistent upon having knowledge as to how far its other purpose will be employed for the benefit of other people. The Solicetor General has rested his whole case on behalf of this bill upon the contention that those who are charged with its administration will administer it fairly and according to its intent as stated to the committee. He rests his whole dependence upon that and refuses absolutely, specifically and persistently to provide any sufeguard of any kind whatever. Having rested his case absolutely on the good intent of himself, his colleagues and those who may through their instrumentality be appointed to administer this bill, he will nave to permit his bill, he will nave to permit his bill, he will nave to permit his bill, he will nave to he minute of the surface of the su o prison.

Mr. Oliver: Who is going to bring John Smith to the court-martial or to the magistrate's court?

Mr. Meighen: He will be brought by the machinery of the law, and if there is not enough machinery now, we will make more.

Mr. Oliver: Who will put the law in motion?

Mr. Meighen: Those on whom the responsibility rests under the British North America Act will put the law into force.

Mr. Oliver, Who

Mr. Melghen: Those on whom the responsibility reats under the British North America Act will put the law into force, Mr. Oliver. Who, does the minister consider, those will be?
Mr. Meighen: Those on whom the responsibility generally rests for the administration of the law. I really thought the ex-minister knew that. The responsibility for the administration of law is on the provinces.
Mr. Oliver: Yes.
Mr. Meighen: The initiative may be taken by others. If the initiative is not taken by others, we will take the initiative, because it is the intention of this Government to enforce this act.
Mr. Oliver: That is the point I wish to make. I think I have arrived at a full explanation that in the last resort it does not depend upon the tribunal; it depends upon this Government, whether the law is enforced or not. If John Smith does not respond to the call, it depends upon this Government whether or not he is going to be brought. I think that is agreed.
Mr. Meighen: The 'ribunals have theirs, and the various authorities in Canada who are considered the responsible officials of Canada, have theirs. We hope and trust that all will discharge their duties, but I canady that whoever fails, that party will not be the Government of Canada.
Mr. Oliver: Then, the matter comes to exactly what I say, namely, that we have to depend upon the fair play of this Government in the administration of this measure in bringing men to appear before the tribunals under their liability to service. I have no confidence in the good faith of this Government in the administration of this measure in bringing men to appear before the furbunals under their liability to service. I have no confidence in the good faith of this Government in the administration of this measure in bringing men to appear before the Minister of Inland Revenue, (Mr. Sevigny) in regard to this bill.

THE BICYCLE BYLAW

This particular clerk gets $250 per month, on top of which the government pay him $100 per month as living expenses. The soldier, who is doing the only real work in this war, gets $33.00 per month and his family must subsist on $20.00 per month with whatever additional is received from the Patriotic Fund. Under the act passed at Ottawa no soldier's wife can draw money from the Patriotic Fund unless she is in need. As every-body would be in need on the allowance paid by the government, practically every soldier's wife draws fron the fund. Why do the government recognise that this clerk in Toronto after getting a salary of $250 per month, still needs $100 per month extra as living allowance, while they continue to pay the soldier's wife the meagre allowance she receives?

A dog is meant for a protection to women and property, and if a dog is doing its duty, I can see no objection to the keeping of sa ns. Of course, any reasonable minded person will allow for a dog's nature, which is to bark and fight with its own kind.

Editer Bulletin:

Sir—Through your columns I wish the problem, but I have yet to see any nearing the stage when again they sow their seeds only to enlarge the

RECRUITING IN CANADA.

RECRUITING IN CANADA.

Editor Bulletin:

Bir,—In today's issue you quote from the "Toronto Daily News," which says that "Canada, in proportion to its population, has raised the largest voluntary army in the world's history."

Figures are more eloquent than words. Canada has enlisted about 400,000 men. Of these a large number were rejected before going to the front and should never have been enlisted. Yet we will take the largest figure. Canada has over seven and a haif milion inhabitants, and Great Britain about forty-five millions. Had the Old Country given men in the same proportion as Canada she would have enlisted 2,400,000. Yet when conscription was passed it was stated officially in the House of Commons that Great Britain had then up-to-date voluntarily enlisted 5,041,000 meni over double the proportion of Canada.

I am the last man to belittle the great work which Canada has done and is doing. If there is a shortage it is in the province of Quebec. Alberta has given more than its share. My sons all enlisted in Calgary in the 12th C.M. Rifles and went to England with the regiment; since then they have get their commissions in the British arpsy by merit and hard work—but that is by the way.

In these matters it is always better to tell the truth and not to humbus the public. All recruiting will slack off if you tell the public that they have broken all the records. The fact remains that Canada has done well, but very far from breaking any records. Great Britain has doubled her proportion, and, though I have not the figures handy, I believe that New Zealand has also beaten Canada in the proportion of men enlisted. If you might give them in a footnote. I remain, dear sir, yours truly,

THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

Editor Bulietin: The letter of "A Returned Soldier" in today's issue re "Liquor and Recruiting" is evidently intended to be a settler. It smacks of a certain set of Englishmen who affect to despise all "colonial" ideas.

If we have sought to remove undue and unnecessary temptations from about our homes, why should we hesitate to send our inexeprienced lads to where they abound? He will, of course, be quite logical. "We should not remove temptations either here or there. It's up to the individual. No one is induced to booze. Soldiers should not be slaves." Yes; the large majorities that voted for prohibition were all wrone! The Nestor has spoken!

When the committy permits the camps to be surrounded with bars (and worse), and supplies liquor in their canteens, have not the officers good backing who encourage the use of liquor by precept and example? And is not total abalinence thus made painfully difficult for the one whose character is not yet fully formed? Yes; some of us who have lads overseas fear bullets less than "Jezebels," and we are glad to hear that they have left for the so-called "danger zone."

He wants 'the people to leave it to the authorities to run the war, and refrain from criticizing." He must have been fighting on the wrong side. He evidently favors Hun principles. "Muzzle the people. Keep them in ignorance. Leave all to the authorities." There's far too much of that already. When the facts in Mee's book "Defeat" had to be kept from Canadians lest it hinder recruiting, we are compelled to question your correspondent's unsupported statement that "booze does not seem to have hurt the Canadians' fighting qualities."

PARKS AND DRIVEWAYS.

Editor Bulletin:

Sir,—In one of your recent issues there was an item announcing that it some local organization proposed to pay for the upkeep of Laurier Park. Just where this is the writer is not exactly aware, but the direction has been pointed out; and, if it is where imagined, the move is a commendable one. But why should it be relegated to a special organization? Why not the community as a whole take hold of the project and see that it is taken care of?

This brings up another matter that has presented itself more than once when visiting Edmonton. This refers to, driveways. By the expenditure of a limited amount each year some of the most charming roads would be available. Edmonton is blessed in having many sections along which delightful auto and vehicle drives can be readily built, and one, or more, of these is along the Saskatchewan. A road on each side of the river would poresent an attractive driveway, and, in after years, when bridges were built at the further ends, would prove of decided interest and a paying advertisement. It could be linked up

Of course, the presence of so many soldiers brought visions of the battle-field to those around, and it was only to be expected that they wanted to hear something about the fighting. So Sorgt. Major Webster in his best form enlightened them as much as he thought judicious. He was followed by Corporal Findlay, while Sergt. Coles also gave some interesting facts. Rev. Matheson, who had been one of the principal instigators of the picnic, made a brief and appropriate speech, and J. J. Bell gave three cheers for the boys at the front, while the veterans reciprocated in a hearty manner.

Motor cars were on the scene in good time for the return journey and all landed at their respective rendezveus before dark, after a pleasum though strenuous day. Amongst those who so kindly loaned their cars and services were Mrs. A. L. Sifton, Mrs. Chas. P. Waste, Dr. Harrison, E. E. Chauvin, J. M. Booth, Chas, Hepburn F. G. McDermid, Lieut, Irving, M. J. ton restaurants of their own initiative established a meatiens day.

This was the general consensus of opinion among restaurant keepers of the city who were visited Tuesday morning and asked for their opinion concerning the latest announcement of Food Controller Hon. W. J. Hanna at Toronto. Mr. Hanna has asked that Toronto. Mr. Hanna has asked that Toronto restaurants establish a meatless day and in addition do not serve bacon at any meals except breakfast. The reduction of club and restaurant meals to two courses is also asked.

Up to the Individual

"It's this way," said one local eating house proprietor, who was persuaded to discuss the matter at the close of the usual breakfast rush, "the restaurant proprietors of Edmonton are just as patriotic as any other section of the community but we would have great difficulty in establishing a standard system for the reduction of food consumption without the plan being made Dominion whe and under the direct supervision of the food confroller. Mr. Hanna at present is merely making requests to the public to conserve the food supply of Canada and it is up to the individual to curb his appetite when eating in a restaurant and not up to the proprietor to tell the customer what he shall and what he shall not eat. Mind you, I do not say that war menus would not be a good idea to have imposed in the restaurants. The enormous saving of food which yould result would certainly help in the present crists but war menus can only come on the authority or dictation of the government."

Telling the Public

Of the restaurant proprietors visited all were anxious that their names should not be mentioned in connection with any views they might advance. "People might think that I am opposed to Canada's prosecuting the war," said one man, "whereas I am only trying to explain how difficult it would be for us fellows to te'l the public what they ought to eat."

"Talking about food conservation," observed one white-claited informant, "you'd be surprised at the number of my customers who are already partaking of war meals on their own initiative. There's one wealthy man, head of a local business concern, who lunches here each day and although he's able to spend any amount for food he wishes, I don't believe his bill for unches in a week would run over $5 cents. Before this food saving idea was started he'd spend half as much tagain for a single noon-hour snack. Do I mind him doing it? Certainly not. It may hurt my profits a bit but tsure would make a wonderfut difference if the rest of the public would follow his example. Maybe then we wouldn't have to worry so much about the progress of the war and whether the allies' goldiers are getting enough to eat."

Among the other restaurant mer visited some had apparently been giving the matter serious thought while others were viewless, one man "Didn' know nothin' about it." and another still was "Too busy to talk."

SUNSET.

If solitude hath ever led thy steps
To the wild ocean's echoing shore,
And thou hast lingered there,
Until the sun's broad orb
Seemed restling on the burnished wave,
Thou must have marked the lines
Of purple gold, that motionless
Hung o'er the sinking sphere:
Thou must have marked the billowy clouds.
Edged with intolerable radiancy
Towering like rocks of jet Crowned with a diamond wreath,
And yet there is a moment,
When the sun's highest point Peeps like a star o'er ocean's Western edge.

When those far clouds of feather;

When those far clouds of feathery gold.

Shaded with deepest purple, gleam Like islands on a dark blue sea;
Then has thy fancy soared above the earth.

The delicious refreshments being served, the guest of the afternoon was asked to speak on the laws for women and children which had been secured through the efforts of the women in British Columbia and chiefly through the untring efforts of Mrs. McGill herself. The speaker was delightfully interesting in depicting the trials and tribulations, the joys and successes of a determined and earnest body of women. Mrs. McGill went thoroughly into the technical side of the laws recently gained, especially the Equal Guardianship of Infants act, passed at the last session of the British Columbia legislature. A graphic account of how the women in B. C. work through a political campaign was listened to with much interest. Mrs. McGill is a fluent speaker and presents her subject in a concise and convincing way. She has helped to point out the need of various reform and follows them up with hard worl to gain these reforms. She is the daughter of the late S. E. Gregory am the granddaughter of chancery, of Ham liton. She has the distinction of being the first woman graduate of Trinity University. A request to prepare and read a paper before the New York Canadian Club in 1887 was considered a high honor and a recognition of usual academic attainments and talent. She is a writer of considerable note and has produced articles of various subjects which have been published in many lands. It was a very profitable afternoon for those who were able to hear this distinguished visitor. Those present were the guest's two young daughters, whe are travelling with her, Mrs. Arthu Murphy, Mrs. R. W.

(3) Your last question is almost if not quite absurd, for in the first place the word coquette is not used in relation to a man's attempts to attract the attention of the opposite sex of whom he is not acquainted and any woman who respects herself will decline to accept any such attempts. Such proceedings on the part of a man show a deplorable lack of culture and defies all the rules of social etiquette. This reserve on the part of the female is her great protection.

A Scoret Engagement
To the Editor of Woman's Page:
Dear Madam—Will you kindly advise me what steps to take in a case like mine? I have been deeply in love with a young man twenty years of age. I myself am eighteen. I expect to make my bow in society next November. My mother pretends to me that she seriously objects to him, yet to other persons she speaks very well of him, but only says she thinks he is spoiled, being the only child. He is always telling me how much he cares for me, and secretly we are engaged. Mother believes he has been too gay in his younger days and knows that he cannot be serious. There is another young man, very ambitious and eager to make something out of life, and who has lots of money, for whom ager to make something out of life, nd who has lots of money, for whom

Is there a substitute for graham flour in making nut bread?

I find that bran substituted for graham flour in nut bread makes it more delicious as well as a little cheaper and is more healthful. The recipe I use is: Two cups white flour, one large cupful bren, four level teaspoonfuls baking powder, sifted with the white flour, one egg, three tablespoonfuls melted lard, water sufficient to make a stiff dough. Germans Are Advancing Along One Front of 155 Miles

Berlin, July 24-An artillery battle of an intensity never paral leled previously is raging day and night in Flanders, the war office announces. The German announcement in

Can anchovy paste be made at home and what is the recipe?
One pound of anchovies, one pint of water, two and one-quarter ounces of salt and two and one-quarter ounces of flour, a dash of cayenne pepper, a small quantity of grated lemon peel and one-half ounce mushroom catsup, all thoroughly pounded and mixed. dicates that in all likelihood the expected British offensive is at hand. Several times recently Berlin has reported heavy artillery fighting in Flanders and the in-tensity of today's bombardment probably denotes the last stage of preparations before the blow is struck. It has been predicted that the next attack of the British would surpass any effort before made by them. The opening of the offensive may be hastened to assist the hard-pressed Russians.

The German forces in Galicia are advancing from the River Sereth to the wooded Carpathians over a front 155 miles wide, says the official statement issued today by the German war office.

Several German divisions, statement adds, report that they have each taken three thousand prisoners. Numerous heavy Russian guns have been captured, and also much booty has been taken by the Germans.

Over the entire eastern front from the Baltie to the Black Sea bitter fighting is proceeding. The statement says great successes have been obtained by the German and allied arms. The Russians have taken the offensive on both ends of the front in the regions of Jacobstadt and Dvinsk and on the Roumanian line. The announcement says that offensive operations by Russia and Roumanian troops in the Trotus and Putna valleys were defeated almost everywhere. Fresh fights developed today.

Gift For Bride

To The Editor of The Women's Page
Dear Madam—What would be nice to send as a wedding gift to a bride who lives in a distant city? I have rever seen her and, therefore, know nothing of her tastes. MARY L.

If you will go into any of the shops which specialize in these things you will probably get a suggestion. I would no: advise you to sond separate pieces of flat silver, cream and sugar jugs or water bottles, for instance, as most brides, receive so many duplicates of this kind; then again, they frequently want their flat silver to be all of one pattern. Your present, too, should depend on the position the young couple will occupy in the world.
Lamps. book-ends, candlesticks, decorative mirrors, novelties in silverware, these all make suitable gifts.

Dear Madam—I am geing to be married this month and am not going to have a large wedding, but expect to go to the minister's house for the ceremony. (1) Would it be right to wear a taffeta silk suit? (2) Wils silk taffeta suits be worn much this warmer? (3) Which would be nicer, a navy blue taffeta or a greer wool suit? (4) Should the bride wear her gloves while the ceremony is being performed, if she is wearing a veil? (5) What kind of gloves should be worn?

should be worn?

(1-2) Yes (3) The navy blue taffeta would be slightly dressier for a wedding, but if you must purchase a suit for general wear the green one would be more practical. (4) Although nowadays it is not considered necessary to wear gloves during the ceremony, the bride may do so, removing the glove of the left hand lust before the ring is to be placed. When the wedding is so informal the left glove need not be splith at the finger as is done in other cases. (5) White glace kid gloves.

In Keeping Down the High-Cost of 102 TO 44 Living The 'Bay' Plays a Giant's Part

The part this Store has played during the last three years of war-time conditions, in keeping down the high cost of living, has been a notable one. Having foreseen the inevitable rise in prices, immediately after the outbreak of hostilities—we prepared to make provision for an immense RESERVE STOCK which ran into millions of money. Our Foreign Buying Agencies bought immense quantities of merchandise at pre-war prices direct from the manufacturers, in order to keep supplied our chain of stores throughout Canada. It's these stocks—which up to the present have proved like the proverbial "Widow's Crusc of Oil"—that have contributed in such a marked degree to THE KEEPING DOWN OF THE HIGHER COST OF LIVING. The benefits are still yours, but for how long we dare not venture to say.

An automobile excursion and picnic was thoroughly enjoyed by the old-time neighbors of Namao on Saturday when about sixty or more of the young folks with a few of the elders for chaperones and chausters motored in 13 autos to the south side of Cooking Lake, where they spent the day in jolly care-free fashion. They all had a great time. Baseball was an interesting feature but the boating and bathing were both a rare treat, especially to the children. It was a good old-fashioned basket picnic without any thought of work or worry of making money and therefore thoroughly enjoyed by those who so often have worked hard at the counter or dining tables at the annual picnics at the Sturzeo. THURSDAY, JULY 25, 1917.

One point upon which there ems to be unanimity among his ewspaper friends is that Sir Robert Borden will have to reorganize is Government if he hopes to get hrough an election.

Ministers who "eased up" recruiting" when and where the munition-makers demanded it are not men to be trusted to enforce conscription against the protests of the same influential interests.

Sir Clifford Sifton is in favor of a "national" Government. It may be only a coincidence that Sir may be only a coincidence that Sir Clifford's name has been associated with the proposal almost from the time it was set in motion.

Sir Robert Borden is getting a large amount of advice from various quarters to the effect that he should reorganize his Government Borden asked him to "ease up on "recruiting" as the munition-makers were objecting. Sir Sam's relations with his late colleagues have been very cordial, especially and unusually cordial considering the circumstances of his leaving the Government. But when they assumed that they could load upor Sir Sam the responsibility for shutting down the recruiting ef-fort they seem to have made one mistake. Sir Sam is the kind of "goat" who can talk; and that particular piece of double-dealing s one he has no intention of allowing them to saddle upon him without protest.

Mr. Southam's paper publishes a letter which it says—quite cor-rectly—was addressed to the Bulletin, and alludes to it in an editorial paragraph as having Bulletin. The implication apparently is that the Bulletin declined to publish the letter and that a copy of it was then sent to the Journal. The matter is not important, but in the interests of the ruth the letter in question was reeived at the Bulletin office just three hours before the edition of the Journal appeared containing both the letter and the editorial paragraph. Also that the copy of he letter appearing in the Journal is dated July 21st, and the copy sent to the Bulletin is dated July 23rd. As to which paper the letter was "first" addressed to the reader may draw an inference.

Epitaph

Editor's Note—Arthur S. Bourinot, who is reported missing from his place at the front, has been a frequent contributor to "The Canadian Magazine." and is the author of a small volume of verse entitled "Laurentian Lyrics." He is a son of the late Sir John Bourinot and Lady Bourinot. Recently he sent to "The Canadian Magazine" this poem, which, it is hoped, will not be his own epitaph. To the June number he contributed these lines:

And I shall see the cottage on the hill.
With all the loveliness of summer days.
Whose memories to me are haunted still
By love's sweet voice, the witchery of her ways.
And I shall climb the path and ope the gate.
When peace has come, if peace comes not too late.

What a great thing it is to be a hero of the battlefield and to give also to the peaceful arts, lines like these and the poignantly pathetic beauty of what here follows:

Epitaph.

Lying in No Man's Land, he sleeps,
Sleeps as well as they who rest
In the gardens by the sea,
In the grave-yards of the west.

Sleeping in No Man's Land, he dream Dreams of those in other lands; Friends he left with pensive lips, Those he left with waiting hands.

Dreaming beneath a foreign sky, Death was but the Evening Star, Setting now to rise again Past the Paradisal bar.

Lying in No Man's Land, he sleeps,
Sleeps as well as they who rest
in the gardens by the sea.
In the grave-yards of the west.

After the vote had been taken Japan's movements in Man-churia should help the Russians to scription Bill and after it had een under discussion in committee of the whole for several days, on June 11th the Government introduced amendments as follows:

Hansard report:

Mr. Meighen: I have some other amendments to propose which constitute important additions to the Act. I have not a large number of copies of them for distribution, but numbers of them will be distributed and available on the table of the House tomorrow morning. I will read the section which I propose as section 16 of the Act, the present section 16 to be made section 17:

the Act, the present section 16 to be made section 17:

16. Any person who comes within any of the classes set out in section 3 and who contravenes any of the provisions of this Act or regulations made thereunder for which contraventions no other penalty is herein provided shall be guilty of an offence and shall be lisble upon summary conviction to a penalty of not less than $100 nor more than $500 and to imprisonment for a term of not less than $100 nor more than twelve months or to both fine and imprisonment.

Free Speech to Re Suppressed.

(2) Any person who by means of any written or oral communication or by any public speech or utterance advises, urges or advocates that the men or any of the men mentioned or intended to be described or included in any of the classes hereinbefore mentioned shall contravene, disobey or refuse, neglect or fail to comply with all or any of the requirements imposed upon them by this Act or by regulations made thereunder or who wilfully resists, obstructs, hinders or impedes or attempts wilfully to resist, obstruct, hinder or impede, or persuades, induces or influence, or attempts to persuade, induce or influence any person or any body or class of persons to resist, obstruct, hinder or impede the due execution of this Act in any respect according to its rue intent and purpose or for the purpose of obstructing, hindering or impeding the operation or administration of this Act in any respect according to its rue intent and purpose or for the purpose of obstructing, hindering or impeding the operation or administration of this Act or the evidence available in support thereof or in any manner whatsoever to embarrass the Government or the Minister in the administration of this Act or the regulations thereunder, shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable upon indictment or upon summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not less than one year nor more than five years.

(3) No proceding authorized or pending before any of the tribunals to imprisonment for a term not less than one year nor more than five years.

(3) No proceding authorized or pending before any of the tribunals provided for by this Act and no decision of any such tribunal shall by means of injunction, prohibition, mandamus, certiorari, habeas corpus or other process whether of the like kind or otherwise issuing out of any court be enjoined, restrained, stayed, removed or subjected to review or consideration upon any ground whether arising out of alleged absence of juris diction in the tribunal, nullity, defect or irregularity of the proceedings or any other cause whatsoever nor shall any such proceedings or decision be questioned, reviewed or reconsidered collaterally in any action or proceeding, civil or criminal.

(4) Nothing in this Act contained should reorganize his Government by going outside Parliament for recruits. The advisers, it seems, are agreed that Parliament as at present constituted does not adequately represent public opinion. Else their contention is that it is mone of, the public's business.

The Solicitor General says that when under the conscription bill a class is called out, it will be the business of the provincial authorities to find out if anyone has failed to respond and to round up the defaulters for punshment. The responsibility is thus to thrust upon those who have no voice as to whether the bill should be adopted, and no responsibility for the conduct of military affairs. The arrangement is not fair, and it cannot be effective.

Sir Sam Hughes sticks consistently to those Liberal in question for having of being given places in the proposed coalition government. They are not the order the substituted to them. They are not fair, and it cannot be effective.

Sir Sam Hughes sticks consistently to his declaration that Sir Thomas White complained to him on more than one occasion that "Canada had done enough for "England," and that Sir Robert "More and the substitute of the content of the conte dictment or upon summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not less than one year nor more than five years; and whether the printer or publisher of any such book, newspaper, periodical, tract, pamphlet, circular or printed publication shall have been first convicted or not the same shall be summarily suppressed and shall remain suppressed for the duration of the present war; and moreover the further publication of any book, newspaper, periodical, tract, pamphlet, circular or printed publication whatsoever in any issue of which any such editorial, article, letter, correspondence or other matter shall have been published is prohibited and the same shall be summarily suppressed and remain suppressed for the duratior of the present war.

(6) This section shall come into force on the day of the sanction of this Act.

Bome hon. Members: Hear, hear. Mr. Oliver (reading):

A much larger proportion of the population of that province is engaged in agriculture than is the case at least with any of the other old provinces of Canada. Agriculture is one of our essential industries, our greatest essential industries, our greatest essential industries, our greatest essential industry, necessarily employing much the largest proportion of our population. Consequently, under the terms of the Bill, the exemptions to agriculture will far out-number the exemptions to other avocations of our people. Therefore, the exemption clauses, applied evenly and fairly all over this Dominion.—

fall more lightly on Quebec than on any other province.

Now, my hon, friend has drafted a Bill for making it fall more lightly on Quebes. The English language is there to be read, and that is the climax of his pretestations to the province of Quebec, that they are under the terms of this Bill treated more lightly than any other province of Canada.

When my hon, friend made the protestations he did, and dragged them into his address without any cause or provocation, we are compelled to reach the conclusion that he desired to impress upon the people of the province of Quebec that they had received special consideration at the bands of the Government in the drafting of this Bill. ing of this Bill.
Mr. Meighen: He said nothing of Mr. Oliver: I have read what he said and it will have to be accepted toth by my hon. friend and his friends that that is what has been done. I will not delay the House by re-reading what my, hon. friend has said. The purpose of it is so evident that he will pardon me if, living in another part of the country, under different conditions, to which part of the country my hon. iriend has not extended his assurances of protection, and to which he refuses to extend any assurance of protection, if I feel some question in my mind that this Bill does not protect the interests of the people of the country, because it is not intended to protect them.

terests of the people of the country, because it is not intended to protect them.

As a matter of fact, it does not. We must depend on the fair play of the Government for bringing forward the men who are to give military service. I interpret his assurance to the province of Quebec as meaning that special favor will be given in that province and I have no faith in the assurance that the Bill will be administered fairly and men will be brought forward. If he intended that it should be administered fairly, why should he not say to this House, following up and correcting the statement of his colleague, how many men are to be taken from the province of Quebec and how many from Alberta? His colleague made the suggestion to the House for the purpose of its being sent through out the country so as to influence the public mind just as he made this statement for the purpose of influencing the public mind. We are entitled to hold the view that if the Government will not make provision in the Bill that it shall be administered fairly as between man and man, industry and industry, and section and section, it is because they do not intend to so administer it.

How Favored Friends May Escape.

Mr. Oliver: There is another feature to them that do not apply with the same force to us. I want to say to the members from Quebec—

I would like my hon, friend (Mr. Neighen) to tell us what these are?
Mr. Oliver: There is another feature of the administration of the bill to which I wish to draw the attention of the innister, and that is the question of appeals. When a man is called up and the tribunal decides that he is entitled to be exempted, the appeal from that decision depends upon the Government. Assuming that there is a section in which public opinion is not inferred to see that the tribunal as appointed reflects public sentiment in that case, that those who go forward and ask for exemption, are tribunal as appointed reflects public sentiment in that case, that those who go forward and ask for exemption, are given exemption. It is absolutely within the responsibility of the Government, under the provisions of this bill, to see that these cases are appealed. Essential power then is in the hands of the Government to see that this bill is properly enforced. The Government while professing to divest itself of the responsibility—which, in my humble judgment, it should not do—does not so divest itself of responsibility, and therefore there is all the more reason why provisions should be in the bill which would protect the public interest and the public welfare. I have used the reference that my in friend has made to the province of Quebec. The Minister of Inland Revenue referred to the province of Quebec. The Minister of Inland Revenue referred to the province of Quebec. It is not that I have anything to say about how they administer their affairs in Quebec, but if I am compelled to read what they say as indicating an intention to extend favoritism to that province, I expect a square deal in my own province. Favoritism in one part of the country might just as well be favoritism in another part of the country and it is for that reason that I ask that provision may be made in the Bill.

Why Seviguy Supports the Bill.

favoritism in another part of the country and it is for that reason that I ask that provision may be made in the Bill.

Why Sevigny Supports the Bill.

I wanted to get some further information from the hon. Minister of Inland Resonue in regard to the statement he favored the House with some weeks ago. He made the suggestion at to the apportionment of the requirement of men to meet this 100,000 draft, and I feel it is most important that we in other parts of the country should know if his statement was made we hauthority or not with authority. I understand my hon. friend disclaimed having any authority for making the statement he did.

Mr. Meighen: He did not make his statement as to any proportion of the men that would be taken.

Mr. Sevigny: I wanted to say that in my opinion it would be very easy to get 100,000 men in Canada. As I said a few minutes ago, speaking in French, it would, I believe, be easy to find 25,-000 men in the province of Quebec. I figure it this way: the city of Montreal has a population of 500,000, and, in my judgment, it would he susy to find 10,000 in that city. I have been told this by at least fifty people who live in the city of Montreal since conscription was first mentioned in this country. Take the city of Quebec, where there is a population of 100,000, and in my judgment it would be very easy to get at least 16 men in each municipality, which would make 12,000 men, and including my estimate for Quebec and Montreal, you would thus get 23,000 men. We have in the province cities like Hull, with a population of 20,000; Sherbrooke, with a population of 5,000; Sherbrooke, with a population of 20,000; Sherbrooke, with a population of 5,000; Sorel, with a population of 6,000, and Levis, with a population of 6,000.

population of 10,000, and others. In my judgment, it would be very easy to get from those cities the 2,000 men necessary to bring the total up 25,000.

Mr. Oliver: I think we can take it for granted that the suggestion placed before the House by the Minister of Inland Revenue is probably a suggestion he would make to the Cabinet when the question was under consideration. For that reason I would like to ask him on what ground he made the suggestion that 10,000 men might properly be conscripted from the province of Alberta under this Bill.

Mr. Bevigny: Alberta has done splendidly since the war broke out. At the same time I have been told by several persons from the province of Alberta—I was told last night by a gentleman from Alberta, Mr. Bolleau, whom I think my hon. friend knows—that while Alberta had done splendidly in recruiting since the war broke out the impression was that Alberta could supply 10,000 more men.

Mr. Oliver: Does my hon friend think it is a fair proposition that Alberta, having already sent 35,000 out of a population of 400,000, should be called upon for 10,000 more, as compared, we will say, with the province of Quebec which, having sent 44,000 is to be called on for 25,000 more? Does my hon friend think that is a fair equalization of the burden?

Some hon. Members: Carried, carried.

Mr. Oliver: Perhaps the minister fair equalisation of the burden?

Some hon, Members: Carried, carried,
Mr. Oliver: Perhaps the minister will be good enough to give a reply.
Some hon, Members: Carried:
Mr. Sevigny: I have aiready said that Alberta has done splendidly but this law will be not for the province of Quebec alone, nor for Alberta alone, but for all the provinces of this Dominion, and if it is possible to find 10,000 fit men in Alberta. I am surthey will be ready to do their duty. In many cases, no doubt, they will come before the tribunals and ask to be exempted and if the reasons are found good they will certainly be exempted I am sure the tribunals of Alberta wil take into account what has been already done by that province.
Mr. Oliver: It is quite evident that the points I have been trying to place before the committes are established and that it is the Intention of the Government under this bill to make the willing horse continue to bear the greater part of the burden. The suggestion that 10,000 should be taken from Alberta in comparison with 25,000 from Quebec is one that should satisfy anybody as to the intention of the Government in regard to the administration of the bill.

Carry War Into Germany
From the London Daily Express:
It is ridiculous to pretend that the German people have no responsibility for the murders of British women and children. The gloating satifaction expressed in the German press is proof that the people approve and applaud. Theirs is the ultimate responsibility. Theirs should be the immediate punishment. Justice and common sense both support the call for reprisals. Military considerations add force to the demand, since these raids compet the constant employment in England of aviators and aeroplanes badly needed at the fighting fronts. If the Government is really in earnest in the desire to keep the ruthless air war out of England it must carry it into Germany. This is no time for leisurely consideration. Prompt action is required.

Timely Testimonial
From the Caigary News-Telegram:
From all quarters the traffic in alcoholic liquors for beverage purposes is receiving a succession of death-dealing blows. Its day is done. Brewers and distillers, with all others who have lived by preying on their fellows, will do well to take notice and power themselves accordingly.

Dr. C. H. Mayo, one of the Mayo brothers, of Rochester, Minn., so well and widely known for their healing and helpful ministry to humankind in their hospital work, was a speaker at the recent convention of the American Medical Association, of which he is the president. This is what he had to say about national prohibition:

"No one except the policeman sees more of the results of over-induigence in alcohol, demonstrated by pauperism, sickness, immorality and crime, than the physician. Medicine has reached a period when alcohol is rareju employed as a drug, being displaced by better remedies. Alcohol's only place now is in the arts and sciences. National prohibition would be welcomed by the medical profession."

It would lead to endless confusion if each province had its own arganizations grappling with the question. There would be a lack of uniformity in methods; regulations and recompense, whereas the Dominion government can survey the whole situation and formulate a plan that will be just to all. The care of returned soldiers is a matter that will have to be dealt with for years. The federal organization is best fitted for the continuity of effort that will be required. Although it is conceded that the care of the returned man is a matter for the federal government, there should be kept alive a warm local interest in the question in order that the state may not be allowed to grow coldina most necessary public duty.

Crown Prince's Army Mown Down Until Men

SHOCK UNITS IN LEAD French Guns Pour Tons of Shells Into Masses, Which Melt

Grand Headquarters of the French Army in France, July 23.—The watchword of the French troops at Verdun, "They shall not pass," has applied equally to the Champagne and the French today showed the Crown Prince's army that the Chemin-despames was a closed road to them.

On Sunday morning the Germans made in great force their fortieth attempt since the French captured Cracine on May 4 to secure possession of the famous road. This effort was one of the biggest offensive movements they had made since Verdun, so far as artillery was concerned, and proved an undoubted failure.

Delayed With Shells

Four o'clock was striking when a terrific bombardment was opened along the front extending from just west of Cerny to Berry-au-Bac. The front lines and rear positions and all the roads leading thereto were deluged with shells and asphyxiating projectiles.

At 5 o'clock the German infantry started from their trenches. The greatest concentrations advanced between Hurtaolies and Cassmates plateau and between Cassmates and Californie plateau, where it was evident they hoped to rush Craonne. The correspondent could observe the entire battle along the crest which stood out in the clearest atmosphere, but rolling along it and over it were dense clouds of black, brown, grey and white smoke from tens of thousands of shells.

It was known that the Prussian shells.

It was known that the Prussian Guard and several other divisions faced the French positions, while other fresh troops were hurrying across the Alliette valley from the north. The French guns answered shot for shot and when the German reinforcements were observed approaching they poured a hurricane of projectiles directly into them, creating great confusion and causing heavy losses.

projectiles directly into them. creating great confusion and causing heavy losses.

Inferno of Shell-Fire
Rifie and machine gun fire began crackling, while the trench mortars hurled torpedoes and the rifie grenadiers opened a wicked barrage fire as soon as the Germans began to leave their jumping-off parallels.

German shock units as usual led the way, followed by waves of ordinary infantry, who were to occupy and organize ground captured. In the sector from Hurtebise to Casemates plateau, the attacking forces soon melted to a thin line under withering French fire and those still able, retreated hurriedly to their own line, which meanwhile came under an inferno of French shell-fire that must have made the German trenches untenable. In the same period from Casemates to Californie plateau other German troop—were suffering heavily under similar conditions. But several times here they gained small portions of the French front, but nowhere did they reach the crest itself.

Where their line bent momentarily the French troops organized immediate counter-attacks and reconquered nearly everything temporarily taken from them.

German Troops Refused

A French captain, who fell wounded early in the day and was captured by the Germans was later rescued by his own men when the Germans were forced back. He confirmed that German troops when ordered to go over the top refused to venture into the terrific fire which swept away cverything in the open.

Aviators were busy throughout the day and sometimes the sky was almost

Are which swept away everything in the open.

Aviators were busy throughout the day and sometimes the sky was almost covered with the smoke from the shrapnel bursting around them. It was a bad day for an infantry attack because the clearness of the air made every movement, even in the narrow communication trenches, visible to the airmen and the observers in kits bal-loons, nirmen and the observers in kite balloons.

The ruin of a few hundred yards of a froat line trench, which is all that remains in German hands, appears small compensation for the fierce fighting in the forty attacks of the last ten weeks, during which conservative estimates place the German losses in the vicinity of the Chemin-des-Dames alone at six figures.

When the correspondent left the field at an advanced hour in the evening the fighting was still proceeding, accompanied by a hot artillery fire.

A Political Battle

London, July 24.—Gerald Campbell, in a telegraphic communication from the French headquarters on Sunday 8035.

in a telegraphic communication from the French headquarters on Sunday says.

"The main object of the series of furious attacks of the enemy during the last few days all along the French front from Verdun to the point of Liaison on the left bank of the Meuse—Moronvilliers, Craonne, Cerny, Pantheon, St. Quentin—is political. Somehow, somewhere, the crown prince had to pull off striking victory to flourish in the faces of the malcontents at home in the reichstag and elsewhere. If that is so he would have done better to stick to military matters. The net result of the actions is that he lost numbers of men, gained rothing by way of observation posts, and hardly any ground.

"The possible explanation of the attacks on the Chemin-des-Dames in particular is that he is desperately anglous to drive the French from their observation posts in order to be able to make preparations for a further retreat without being constantly overlooked. The way the French armies folled his plans, in spite of the wonderful grit with which the men of his command tried to carry out orders, is, for sheer courage, as fine as anything they have done in the whole war."

Printers Got Big Lead But Capitals Came Back Strong.

LEAGUE STANDING

Diamond park was the scene of a lively game of baseball last night when the Endaies, by defeating the Capitals 5 to 3, tled for the lead in the intermediate league race. The game was exceedingly fast throughout.

The Esdales took a strong lead at the start, but the Capitals made a bid to win in the sixth which came within an ace of turning the trick.

The Esdales made all their runs in the first two inning owing to a few hits off Thompson and some costly errors. But the Capitals did not lose heart, and in the sixth inning, with three on bases. Herbert, shortstop for the Capitals, popped up an infield fly which fell safe. The batter was of course out, but Malonsy threw wild to third and Geddis contributed another error, which bre ught in Mounterfield. McDonald and Thompson for three runs. Two more runs were made in the minth inning by the Capitals, but owing to the game being called on account of darkness, the score reverted to the eighth inning and these tailles were not counted.

Haloney, on second base for the Esdales, played an excellent game and also found Thompson for two hits. McIntosh, McDonald and Chisholm handled the swatter very effectually for the Capitals.

There will be no game this evening on account of the absence of the Edmonton team in Ponoka.

The spurt he made to gain lost ground called forth the loudest applause which has been tendered a competition this year. However, in the next three heats, Coplous showed his mettle winning all three. Katle Tod made a good showing in the last two heats, pressing Ceplous hard on both occasions. Joe McGuire, piloting A. R. G., was distanced in the final heat, losing second money. # GRAND CIRCUIT CLASSIC WON

Detroit Hard Fought

DETROIT, July 24.—The 1917 renewal of the Board of Commerce stake, one of the pacing classics of the Grand Circuit, was one of the hardest fought in its history, although the stake record was not equalled in today's contest. Bix heats were required before the winner's share of the $5,000 purse was captured by the eastern horse, Ben All, driven by C. E. Pittman, of Trenton, N.J. All three heat winners stepped very fast miles and the first four heats furnished exciting brushes at the finish. H. S. Smith, of Newark, N.J., is Ben All's owner.

Smith, of Newark, N.J., is Ben All's owner.

Adioo Guy set the pace throughout the first mile and stepped the final quarter in 29½ seconds to stall off. The Savoy by a few feet. The Savoy pushed into the lead after passing the half in the second heat and won the heat with quite a bit to spare. The Savoy also led into the home stretch in the third. But Ben All shot by him at the end, making the extension of the race to six heats certain, as three horses had each won a heat.

Peter G., led almost all the way in the fourth heat when Ben All broke slightly at the start, but The Savoy took the heat by a short distance. Ben All led all the way in the last two heats, showing more stamins than the others and jogging home in the last mile.

Sporting Facts and Fancies

Speaking of the Pirates, there is considerable excitement in Smokeville over the dismissal of Jimmy Calahan. The fans are hopping all over Barney Dryfuss for releasing him and many are demanding that he, too, get his walking papers.

Sh, Sh, Sh—there's a great mystery in baseballdem:. Don't let anyone hear a word about what you are now about to apprehend. Some deep-dyed viliain, mysterious, epheneral, is writing letters to certain members of major league teams, inviting them to join the Players' Fraternity. Who's dark deed is this?

Ty Cobb has been slamming the speis off the ball for over a month now and has entirely made up for his seeming lack of pep during the beginning of the season. But no matter how hard he wallops the pellet, there is hardly a chance that he will equal his greatest swatting campaign, that of the season of 1911. Six years ago Cobb carried out the greatest assuult ever known in baseball. In that year Cobb smashed all records by secring 147 runs, making 248 hits in 146 games. This record has never even been approached. Ty recently passed the 190-hit mark this season and has scored about fifty runs in something over seventy games. If he hopes to attain the mark he set himself in 1911 he will have to pound out at least 140 hits and score over 100 runs in the games still to be played until the end of this season. A is, of course, possible that this can be done, but it is most unlikely. Ty would have to keep up his June and early July spurt to attain this end. It means that for the remainder of the season his batting average will have to ze. 456. The truth is that for the past several weeks Cobb's average has been around .460, in one of the most remarkable batting demonstrations ever known.

John K. Tener's Big Job.

For the past few years John K. Tener, former Governor of Pennsylvania, has been president of the National league and of all the big jobs he has held, this is certainly one of the most trying. It was on July 25 that Tener was chosen for this big job, which carries with it a salary of $25.000 a year. And the man who holds it down successfully certainly deserves every peuny he gets. He must combine the qualities of a baseball genius, a diplomat and a shrewd judge of men. His two principal jobs as president are the handling of the staff of umpires, their proper distribution among the various cities, and being a member of the National Baseball Commission. This latter is quite a job in itself. The presidents of the National and American leagues with the chairman of that commission have absolute control of all organised baseball in the country. The job of taking care of the staff of umpires has given many sque presidents premature grey hair. He is directly responsible for their performances and it's a big task finding and drilling men to be competent judges of games. Besides that, all sorts of questions come up for his decision, and some of them are mighty ticklish ones. Yes, being president of a big league is a fine job, if you can hold it.

hold it.

Chicage, July 24.—General selling of cern resulted today chiefly from news of the breaking of a two months' drought in North Central Kansas. It was said also that there had been some lucrease of that there had been some lucrease of the live stock. Benewal of peace goasip from Washington tended here in some degree to ald the hears. Opening quotations, which ranged from the same as yesterday's finish to le lower, with September at 163½ to 16, were followed by a moderate setback all around.

Wheat gaye way with corn, difficulties integring the progress of food control. Legislation seemed to act somewhat as a weight on the market. After opening unchanged at 259 July and 231½ September, prices hardened a triffe and then underwent a decided sag.

Oats were dopressed by unloading on the part of a big house, which had recently been a conspicuous purchaser. Favorable harvest returns counted against the buils. Weakness of grain pulled down provisions. Higher quotations on hogs appeared to be ignored.

It was gossipped that there would be deliveries on July contracts before the end of the week and that larger receipts were probable. The market closed steady, 5c to 642 lewer at 254 July and 225 September.

WINNIPEG, July 24.—Receipts at the Union stock yards today totalled 300 cattle and 320 hogs.
Cattle market quiet. Prices held steady for the few cattle that changed hands. Over 900 cattle on hand in the yards, mostly stockers and feeders which are slow to dispose of. Good quality miles cows and close-up springers in good demand at steady prices. Hogs sold steady at Monday's market. What few solects were in the offerings brought $14. The market has a weak undertone.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK TORONTO, July 24.—Receipts at the Inion stock yards today were 558 cattle, 8 calves, 385 sheep and lambs, and 257 is caives, 383 sheep and lambs, and 201 hogs.

There was the usual run of fresh caftle for Tuesday's market, but with about 700 left over from yesterday there was no scarcity. While trade was a little more active than yesterday the market was weak at yesterday's decline of about 50 cents, but over that figure on the common stuff. A heavy run of cattle would probably depress the market seriously.

Caives weak. Sheep and lambs weak, Hogs, a little firmer but the market is unsettled.

ANTI-CONSCRIPTION

Montreal, July 24.—Signs of lessening interest in street preaching against conscription, which has been going on since Premier Borden's announcement of the intention to intraduce such a measure, were to be seen at a gathering held last night at the corner of St. Hubert and De Montigny streets, when the speakers at an anti-conscription gathering used the stairway of the Laval Dental College as a platform. Only a few people collected around the speakers. There was a large array of speakers, but the majority, heeding rumblings of threatened thunder and considering the small audience, postponed their addresses. Fewer anti-conscription meetings are now being held throughout the city, the various strings of speakers having fairly well covered all the wards of the city. Their arguments are now well known. Nor is there that spontaneity of enthusiaam that made the earlier meetings interesting.

Uncle Wiggily and the Sour Grass

Copyright, 1917, by McClure News-paper Syndicate.

One day when Uncle Wiggily Longears, the rabbit gentleman, was out walking in the woods he met Little Bo Peep, who had stepped out of the Mother Goose book to see what happened to her sheep.

"Well, well! I'm glad to see you!" cried the bunny gentleman.

"And I'm glad to see you," spoke Bo Peep, "Perhaps you can help me find what I am looking for."

"Certainly I'll try," kindly said Uncle Wiggily, "But if it's for your sheep, why don't you let them alone and they'll come home, wagging their tails behind them?"

"It isn't my sheep I'm looking for," answered the little shepherd girl, "but it's for some sorrel for them to eat."

"Sorrel for sheep?" asked Uncle Wiggily, "Pray what is that?"

"It's a sort of sour grass," explained.

Wiggily. "Pray what is that?"
"It's a sort of sour grass," explained Bo Peep. "It looks like clover, but is a lighter green in color, and it has a nice, sour taste like lemonade without any sugar in it. Sheep like to nibble it on hot days and I'm trying to find some for mine."
"I'll help you," offered Uncle Wiggily, so, with the little sheep girl he hunted through the grass, but no sorrel could they find.
"Well, I guess there isn't any," sadly

Just then Uncle Wiggily saw a poor little ladybug fail in a drop of water that was in the bottom of a pitcher of the Jack-in-the-Pulpit plant, but before the tiny creature could drown the bunny gentleman got her out.

"Oh, thank you!" chirped the ladybug, fluttering her apotted wings.
"You did me a great favor. I wish I could do you one!"

"Then show us where some sheep sorrel or sour grass is growing," begged Bo Peep.

"With pleasure," answered the ladybug, and she did, taking Bo Peep and

"With pleasure," answered the lady-bug, and she did, taking Bo Peep and Uncle Wiggly to where much sour grass grew in a meadow near a brook. The little girl gathered an apron full for her sheep. Uncle Wiggly tasted some, but it was so sour and he made such a queer face when he chewed it that Bo Peep and the ladybug laugh-

"Bur-r-r-r-r! It is very puckery!" said the bunny rabbit gentleman.
"My sheep like it," said Bo Peep. And away she hurried with her apron full of sour grass.

Uncle Wiggily hopped slowly along through the meadow when Bo Peep and the ladybug had left him, and the rabbit gentleman was thinking how queer it was that some grass was gweet and other grass was sour, when and other grass was sour, when a sudden, out from behind a big stone jumped a bad animal called a

Ah, ha!" anickered the skeezicks, which is something like a mosquito, only worse. "Ah ha! I have you!" And he grabbed Uncle Wiggliy fast in his claws. "I have you!" growled the

"So I see," sadly said Uncle Wiggily.
"But what are you going to do with me?"

"I am going to bite you," said the skeezicks. "I have not bitten any one in a long while, and now that I have caught you, why, you are the very one I am going to bite."
"Oh please don't." begged the bunny uncle.

"Yes I shall!" declared the skeezicks insistent like and perversely. "I shall bite you, but it will take me a long time, for I have only a very small mouth, as you can see. I can only take parts of a bite at a time but, if I keep at it, in a week or so I shall give you a whole bite. Now I am going to begin," and the skeezicks opened its tiny little mouth.

As soon as Uncle Wiggly saw that mouth he had an idea. Instead of trying to get away from the skeezicks he asked, most kindly "Before you bite me, let me inquire if you have had your lunch?"

"I have not," said the skeezicks. "Is there anything here good to eat?"

"Here is some sorrel," said Uncle Wiggly, pointing to some of the sour grass growing in the meadow. "Bo Peep took some to her sheep, and—"

"Say no more!" interrupted the skeezicks. "If sheep eat it I can!"

Then the skeezicks took his little mouth full of the sour grass and he chewed it, and the—

"Wow! Wish! Wop! Wush!" splutterer the skeezicks. "How sour-our-our! Ugh!"

Then the sour grass sheep sorrel so Yes I shall!" declared the akeezicks terer the skeezicks. "How sour-our-our! Ugh!"

Then the sour grass sheep sorrel so puckered up the skeezicks already small mouth, tust as alum does yours until the mouth was no larger than the tear in a mosquito's eye, and the skeezicks could not open his lips or teeth wide enough even to bite Uncle Wiggily's tall silk hat.

So the skeezicks had to run away to get a drink of honeysuckle juice to take the sour, puckery taste out of his mouth, and he didn't hurt the bunny after all. And if the biscuits don't hump out of the oven, to play tag with the hot cross buns, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the ant.

Sees Letters from Friends
Dear Uncle Tom-I received my badge quite a while ago and thought it was very nice. Is the lamp on the badge the kind of lamp that Aladdin found in the cave which brought him such good fortune to us if we keep the pledge? As we are having holidays now the club ought to receive lots of letters. I have seen tots of letters from children I know and i always become more interested in the club as soon as I see a letter from some-sne I know. I wonder if that is the way with some of the other nephews and nelces.

Sidelights on the War

All Thrones are Shaky Nowadays The king business is certainly in a bad way these days. There used to be a time and it stretched over a few bad way these days. There used to be a time and it stretched over a few thousand years, when men fought each other for the job of king and even lost their lives in the scrapping, but nowadays it is doubtful if anyone would put up very much of a fight for a throne. The reason is that you never can tell how long they are going to keep the blooming thing once they've got their hands on it. The Czar and King Constantine that was, are today occupying a park bench and not worrying much about statecraft. The King of Spain is having his troubles keeping his balance on the throne, the Kaiser is hanging on tooth and nail, and his nails will be clipped and his teeth pulled before long. There is one king who sits on his throne quite comfortably and that is the King of Italy. But he knows, too, that any day something might happen. He's a good zort, though, for he is said to have remarked to one of his ministers that, if Italy was to be a republic, he would like to be its first president. Maybe he will be, who knows? Anything is liable to happen these days.

Little Stories of Big Men David Belasco, Star Maker production." That,

David Belasco. Star Maker

"It's a Belasco production." That, gentie reader, is usually sufficient to make a play a success. That expression is in the mouth of the people from Maine to San Francisco and reflects the genius of the man who has perhaps done more for the American stage than any other. Not alone has he brought the stage to a higher level, but he has injected his enthusiasm and his art into the blood of his actors and actresses. He is known as a star maker, and he has made many and lasting ones. David Belasco was born in San Francisco on July 25, 1859, and today, on his fifty-eighth birthday you will find him busy at his studio in the Belasco theatre, New York, working over manuscripts, correcting them, perfecting them, so that when they are produced under his care, they will be perfect plays. His father was an Englishman, and his mother of Portuguese descent, He was educated at the Lincoin grammar school in San Francisco, but decided at the age of fifteen that he had had enough of school. He had a hankering after the stage. Not that he was stage-struck, but the stageland had a great fascinating for him, so he quit school and took a job as call boy in the old California theatre. Att that time such stars as Booth, Charlotte Cushman, McCuliough and Adelaide Neilson played their annual engagements there, supported by local stock companies. As call boy he studied. That's what he took the job for anyway. He wanted to be on the scene of activity. So when he wasn't busy telling the actors and actresses when to go on, he could be found with a book in front of his nose, or watching the actors and actresses from the wings. Did it profit him any? The best answer to that question is the statement that at the age of twenty he had become the stage manager of the theatre. Just think of it twenty years old, an age when today boys are just, well, just boys, and he a stage manager. His genius immission made itself feit in the theatrical world. The succes of his productions became so pronounced that he was persuaded to go to the east. He finally decided to heed the call and went to New York, where he became identified with the old Madison Square theatre. Now began his real career. Ho produced one play after anoties with success, assisting in the writing of lanny of them. It was at this time that his attention was attracted to Mrs. Leslie Carter. He at once discovered in her a great actress and devoted his best efforts to her training. It took four years of heartbreaking labor, discouragement and hard luck beforc he finally landed her as a successful star in his play "The Heart of Maryland." Three years later he established her as the greatest emotional actress in America in "Zaza." What he had done for Mrs. Carter, he found no difficulty in doing for David Warfield. His latest stellar creation is Frances Starr, the heroine of "The Easlest Way."

Today We Celebrate

Festival of the Seven Sleepers The Festival of the Seven Sleepers, commemorated at this time in July, was introduced into the Christian Church at a very early period. The legend on which it is founded relates that the Emperor Decius in the year 250, having set up a statue in the city of Ephesus, commanded all the inhabitants to worship it. Seven young men, disobeying this command, and knowing the punishment that would follow, fled to Mount Coelius, where they concealed themselves in a cavern. Decius, enraged, caused all the caverns on the mountain to be closed up, and nothing was heard of the seven fugitives until the year 479, when someone, digging a foundation for a stable, broke into the cavern and discovered them. Disturbed by the unusual noise, the young men, who had been asleep all this tame, awakened; feeling very hungry, and thinking they had slept but one night, they sent one of their number into Ephesus to buy some provisions. The antiquity of the coin he proffered to the dealer aroused suspicions, and the matter was brought to the attention of the authorities. After an investigation the whole matter was declared to be a miracle, and in its commemoration the festival was instituted. This legend, which is merely an adeptation of a more ancient one, has found a place in the Koran. According to the Mohammedan account, the sleepers were accompanied by a dog, named Kratim. This animal, after its long sleep, becoming a great prophet and philosopher, has been admitted into the Mohammedan paradise, where it sits behind the ass of Balaam. The other eight animals that enjoy this high privilege are the ant of Solomon, the whale of Jonah, the ram of Isaao, the calf of Abraham, the camel of Saleh, the cuckoo of Blikis, the ox of Moses, and the mare of Mohammed. Alban Butler in his great work on the saints gives a rational cast to the legend of the seven sleepers. He asserts that the young men were put to death by being walled up in a cave, and thiat only their relics were discovered in 479. These relics he says are preserved in a large stone co The Festival of the Seven Sleepers, commemorated at this time in July, was introduced into the Christian Church at a very early period. The

Today's Anniversaries

Charles V. of Germany, in the year 1535, having assembled a powerful fleet, landed at Tuniis and carried by assault the fortress of Golotta. This gave him possession of Barbarossa's fleet of 87 galleys and 200 cannon. Having reinstated Muley Hussan and liberated more than 20,000 slaves, he returned to Europe. On this date in 1653, the assembly of the Boottish church having met at Edinburgh, were dismissed by Cottoral for not having the authority of the parliament of England. The members were furthermore commanded not to be seen together in groups of more than two. On July 25, 1830, Charles X. of France decreed that the liberty of the press be suspended. Five days later the himself was suspended from the throne. It isn't often that a man lives through the reign of five kings, but this was so in the case of Andrew Laughlin, who died at Devrock, Ireland, on July 25, 1840, at the age of 110 years. He had seen five kings successively ascend the Eritish throne. On this day in 1868, Wyoming territory was formed from Eakota, Utah and Idaho. The Egyptian obelisk was brought to New York city on this date in the year 1880.

The Stars and Stripes at Porto Rico

Nineteen years ago today, on July 25, 1898, the first American fiag was sent out into the breeze over Porto Rico. It was the crew of the U.S.B.
Glouester under command of Lieutenant Commander, now Rear Admiral, Wainwright, that first started from Guantanamo, on July 21, several war vessels and transports laden with troops taking part. The Glouester, when the island was sighted, was sent ahead, being a small ship of light trough taking part. The Glouester, when the island was sighted, was sent
ahead, being a small ship of light draught. Two boat loads of saliors arrived with rifles and a few sixpounders were sent ashore and drove the handful of natives into the hills.
The Spanish flag, which fluttered from a mast in the midst of a cluster of houses, was lowered and the Stars and Stripes run up, with appropriate salutes, while those same natives sent a few bullets in the general direction of the flag pole, without hitting anything except the houses. The other ships of the expedition had by this time come up and men and guns were landed.
There was not very much work for them to do, however, and by night fall men, materials and the animals which had been landed were in camp. Since then the American flag has been floating over the island steadily, and no one rejoices more over this fact than the Porto Rican.
